Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: Applicant argues that the prior art does not disclose sampling additional sets of multilevel pixels at a preset sample rate. The examiner maintains the position that the combination of Bresler and Lin does disclose this. Bresler discloses a method of filtering to obtain two sets of multilevel pixels (col. 3, lines 38-61). Now that a second set of pixels has been filtered, Lin provides the missing step of sampling a set of multilevel pixels with the motivation of eliminating moire (col. 4, lines 57-67; col. 5, lines 1-5). Applicant further argues that Dohnomae does not teach "having a processor with specified dot-gain adjustments that can be used to convert continuous tone images to adjusted halftone binary images that can be sent directly to proofing". The examiner notes that this limitation does not appear in the claims, and Dohnomae is, in the previous Office Action, relied upon to obviate the limitation of "passing the adjusted halftone binary bitmap directly to a proofing system", with reference to col. 3, lines 63-67 and col. 4, lines 1-3 of Dohnomae. Finally, the applicant argues that Fan differs from the applicant's invention in that Fan's filters must be positioned perpendicularly and are pattern matching filters. Again, such a limitation is not recited in the applicant's claims, and it is believed that Fan does anticipate the actual claim limitations and has proper motivation of eliminating loss of detail (col. 4, lines 4-11).
